PENNSYLVANIA LEGENDS

OLDE SALT RESTAURANT (Saltsburg, Indiana County) The staff complained of eerie occurrences such as ricocheting ketchup bottles, sudden cold breezes, and silverware trays sliding across the counter and crashing to the floor. The owners called in Ghostseekers of Pennsylvania, who confirmed the events are due to the supernatural. (The Penn "Ghosthunters Share Spooky Stories," October 29, 2004) The Olde Salt moved next door, and guess what - it got even spookier! The basement is home to a spectral family of runaway slaves, two men, a woman, and a child, that supposedly date back to its days as an Underground Railway stop. Located on Point Street, a historic district that dates back to the 1700s, the restaurant also sports the spirits of a man dressed in black, an old caretaker, and a small girl. And it still has its poltergeist activity. Real Ghost Stories

DOCTOR WEIR'S HOUSE CALL (Philadelphia) During the 1800's, a Dr. Weir was toasting himself in front of his fireplace on a snowy winter's day when a knock sounded. He answered the door, and a little teary-eyed girl pleaded with him to hurry out and see her mama, who was terribly sick. Of course, the good doc did, after trying to pawn the girl off on another medico. He went through the storm to the house with the girl, went upstairs, and found a lady suffering from a serious bout of pneumonia. Doc Weir worked his sawbone magic on her, and said "Thank God your daughter fetched me. You might have died if you let this go another evening." The woman paled and pointed to the closet, where the little girl's outfit neatly hung, dry as a bone. "My daughter died a month ago" said the mother. (From Phillylist's "Philadelphia Weirdness" March 23, 2008)

PEDDLER'S GRAVE (Mahanoy City, Schuylkill County) The Peddler's Grave is a landmark recalling a brutal murder committed there on August 11, 1797, the first recorded killing in the county. It's the final resting place for Jost Folhaber, a local traveling peddler killed by a robber, Benjamin Bailey, who was later captured and hung. The peddler was buried under the tree where he met his untimely end. The grass withered and never grew again, and the snow which fell to a great depth all around the spot would melt at once as it fell about the tree. Passer-bys saw strange sights, and one young man, reported that he had seen the peddler, whom he had known well in life, running around the tree pursued by a man with an axe, reliving the crime. So dreaded was the spot that no one ventured to pass the grave if they could avoid it, and there were rumors of moans and cries in that vicinity, heard near and wide. Now it's a popular tourista spot; go figure. The story was taken verbatim from Old Schuylkill Tales, written by Ella Zerbey Elliott in 1906.

Upcoming & Ongoing Expeditions:

The UFO Research Center of Pennsylvania, Phantoms and Monsters Fortean Research Team and others will converge on Clearfield, Blair and Cambria Counties to research and investigate sightings of bi-pedal creatures reported in those areas. The first phase of the Investigative Expeditions has started with Clearfield County as the first target area. Cambria and Blair Counties are next up.
