Coming in 2015

More information coming soon!

THE PARANORMAL OF PA

Elizabeth, PA - The bridge is haunted by a man who threw himself to his death from the bridge 20 years ago. He is still there on the bridge. He has been seen by many people over the years. He appears in front of cars for a split second and then disappears again.

Columbia, PA - A friend told us that late one night years ago he was walking home on the railroad tracks that run between Blue Lane and Plane Street in Columbia. He said that he saw a white figure on the tracks ahead and thought it was a deer until it stood upright and ran towards him.

He said he yelled at it and began to turn away when it darted into the woods where a little old quarry is. I asked an elderly friend who's lived on Blue Lane since she was born and she said decades ago a man murdered his daughter in town then ran to the quarry trying to escape the cops.

He shot himself there but since the quarry wasn't in use and filled with water they never recovered his body from the bottom.

PENNSYLVANIA LEGENDS

Blue Mist Road, Pittsburgh, PA

There is said to be a blue mist over Irwin Road. There is also a cemetery near the road and the gravestones of two lovers attempt to touch in the full moon. It's said that if they manage to touch the world will end. This road is also believed to have a history of disgraceful practices by the KKK and Satanic rituals. Other stories include witches living in the homes that are now ruins along the road and a "Midget Farm". Legends say that groups of angry little people will attack your car if you drive through at night.

A father allegedly killed his wife and children and placed them in a septic tank. The road is also believed to be haunted by a spectral dog, a half man-half deer creature, and a teenage boy. The latter died when he honked his horn three times and was killed by either a ghost or a deranged psycho who had escaped from an asylum that once existed on the road. The teenager's body was hung from a tree.
